

What is Housing Discrimination?

Housing discrimination occurs when a person is treated differently due to their race, color, religion, sex, family status, disability, or national origin.

Housing discrimination is illegal. The fair housing laws apply to landlords, sellers, brokers, lenders, insurance agents, neighbors, and other people in the housing industry.

Discrimination Complaint Service

Fair Housing Contact Service (FHCS) receives funds from the United States government and different cities and counties to investigate claims of housing discrimination and assist clients in filing administrative complaints.

Examples of Housing Discrimination

- 🏠 Intimidating or harassing tenants
- 🏠 Refusing to rent, sell, or offer housing-related services
- 🏠 Falsely denying that housing is available
- 🏠 Treating tenants differently when providing repairs or services
- 🏠 Applying different rules or rental amounts
- 🏠 Steering people to rent in certain sections of town
- 🏠 Telling property owners to sell when the character of their neighborhood changes
- 🏠 Discriminatory advertising
- 🏠 Refusing to make reasonable accommodations for people with disabilities

If a landlord, seller, insurance agent, or mortgage broker engages in these activities because of the race, color, religion, sex, family status, disability, or national origin of a prospective tenant or buyer, they may be held liable under state and federal fair housing laws.

What Can I Do?

If you feel that you may have experienced housing discrimination, call us at 330-376-6191 or toll-free at 877-376-6191. A counselor will speak to you and provide paperwork if you wish to file a complaint.

If you choose to file a housing discrimination complaint, our office can help you file your complaint with the Ohio Civil Rights Commission or the US Department of Housing and Urban Development.

A FHCS representative is available to be your advocate during this process.
